Peer group: Dynamic Planner Risk Profile 4. Performance is calculated on a total return basis in GBP terms. The value of the underlying funds and the income generated from them can go down as well as up, and is not guaranteed. Investors may not get back the original amount invested. The value of investments involving exposure to foreign currencies can be affected by currency exchange rate fluctuations. Past performance is not a guide to future performance.

Monthly commentary

- After a difficult first quarter, markets rebounded strongly in April as a tentative ceasefire and renewed US-Iran dialogue lifted sentiment and triggered a sharp rally in risk assets. Geopolitics briefly took a back seat to the dominant tech and AI narrative that has driven markets in recent years, even though underlying tensions in the Middle East remained largely unresolved. The Strait of Hormuz stayed effectively closed, regional conflicts persisted, and oil prices remained elevated. Brent Crude is still near double its start-of-year level and futures are implying $100 oil through September, posing a potential headwind to growth and earnings. Nonetheless, investors welcomed the relative calm, with "not worse" news proving supportive.
- Performance was broadly positive across asset classes. Global equities rose 6.7%, marking one of the strongest monthly gains in decades. Growth significantly outperformed value (9.4% vs 4.3%), while quality delivered 6.1%, though more defensive segments lagged. Technology led markets higher, with the Nasdaq and "Mag 7" up almost 12%. Asian and emerging markets also performed strongly, supported by outsized gains in semiconductor names such as SK Hynix, which helped drive Korea's KOSPI up over 30%. Despite the risk-on backdrop, bond markets were relatively resilient as easing inflation expectations provided support. Credit performed well, with spreads tightening across both corporate and emerging markets.
- Real assets and alternatives also delivered positive returns, while gold declined modestly, reflecting limited demand for traditional hedges in a strong risk environment. Energy prices eased slightly over the month, although remained elevated in absolute terms. In the UK, relations with the US appeared to stabilise following a successful state visit, offering a temporary reprieve from recent political tensions.
- We enter May with improved momentum. Portfolios remain well diversified with a broadly constructive risk stance. While valuations have risen in parts of the market, we continue to emphasise staying invested amid rapidly shifting sentiment. A diversified, style balanced global equity allocation remains central, with elevated concentration in markets enhancing the opportunity for active management, even if headline index returns moderate from here.

The Managed Portfolios' returns are net of the AMC and underlying fund charges but do not take into account the platform provider's charges. Performance may also differ depending upon which platform is used to access the Momentum Managed Portfolios due to different rebates and fees agreed with the Fund Manager by the Platforms. Important information

Fact sheet asset allocation percentages are in some cases based on the normalised (or benchmark) asset allocations of investee funds, as opposed to the actual exposures of those funds at the date of the fact sheet. This reflects the expected average allocation over time which will result from decisions to hold particular funds.

If you are considering investing in the Momentum Managed Portfolios clients should consult a suitably qualified and approved Financial Adviser. The performance shown represents performance of the Managed Portfolios that are periodically restructured and rebalanced based on the impact of material, economic and market factors that influence MGIM's decision-making on asset allocation. The Managed Portfolios are applied to client accounts by the platform provider but it may take some time for the client accounts to mirror the performance of the Managed Portfolios. It is for this reason that client accounts may not have achieved exactly the same returns as the Managed Portfolios. The performance of the Managed Portfolios is based on the actual performance of the underlying funds included in the portfolios. These performance figures have not been audited by an external body. The value of investments may go down as well as up and the value will depend on fluctuations in financial markets outside MGIM's control, as a result an investor may not get back the amount invested.
