The value of the underlying funds and the income generated from them can go down as well as up, and is not guaranteed. Investors may not get back the original amount invested. The value of investments involving exposure to foreign currencies can be affected by currency exchange rate fluctuations. Past performance is not a guide to future performance.

Monthly commentary

- Global markets were broadly flat in November, masking sharp intra-month volatility. Global equities fell 0.5% (MSCI World), while global government bonds fell 0.7%. The S&P 500 fell 3.9% from its late-October peak before recovering by month-end, as the VIX spiked and Treasury yields swung with shifting risk sentiment.
- Two key drivers dominated: Fed policy expectations and AI-related concerns. Rate-cut bets were pared early in the month amid a US government shutdown and cautious Fed commentary, then revived on weak consumer confidence and labour data, alongside speculation that Trump's Fed chair nominee, Kevin Hassett, will push for deeper cuts. Meanwhile, questions over the sustainability of the AI boom triggered sharp declines in high-valuation tech stocks. Nvidia fell 14.6% from its peak despite strong earnings, while CoreWeave plunged 48%. Alphabet bucked the trend, surging 13% on optimism around Gemini and custom AI chips, overtaking Microsoft in market cap. The "Big Four" now represent 19% of the MSCI World index, underscoring extreme market concentration.
- Sector performance reflected these dynamics: semiconductors and defence stocks saw sharp pullbacks before partial recoveries. Crypto suffered the steepest losses, with Bitcoin down one-third, erasing YTD gains, while gold rose 5% as a safe-haven, extending its YTD rally to 50%.
- Regional trends diverged. China fell 3.3% (MSCI China) on tech weakness and persistent property sector stress, marking its 28th consecutive month of home price declines. Japanese equities fell 0.7% (Topix) and JGB yields hit record highs amid fiscal sustainability concerns. In the UK, a leak-plagued budget delivered higher spending and back-loaded tax hikes, leaving growth subdued but fiscal risks contained for now. Gilts and sterling were being traded in tight ranges, and the pound saw a moderate rise against the dollar and yen.
- While November's volatility highlights risk around AI valuations, growth prospects, and policy uncertainty, rate cuts and supportive conditions should underpin US growth and corporate earnings. Elevated valuations and market concentration call for caution, broad diversification, and tactical agility. Despite near-term volatility, we remain constructive on the medium-term outlook and see opportunities to add risk selectively during pullbacks.

Important information

Prior to 15.04.2024 the Momentum Passive Plus Moderate Portfolio was known as pi Balanced Portfolio.

Fact sheet geographic allocation percentages are in some cases based on the normalised (or benchmark) asset allocations of investee funds, as opposed to the actual exposures of those funds at the date of the fact sheet. This reflects the expected average allocation over time which will result from decisions to hold particular funds.

Nothing contained herein constitutes investment, legal, tax or other advice nor is it to be solely relied on in making an investment or other decision. If you are considering investing in the Momentum Passive Plus Portfolios ("Portfolios") clients should consult a suitably qualified and approved Financial Adviser. The performance shown represents performance of the Portfolios that are periodically restructured and rebalanced based on the impact of material, economic and market factors that influence MGIM's decision-making on asset allocation. The Portfolios are applied to client accounts by the platform provider but it may take some time for the client accounts to mirror the performance of the Portfolios. It is for this reason that client accounts may not have achieved exactly the same returns as the Portfolios. The performance of the Portfolios is based on the actual performance of the underlying funds included in the portfolios. These performance figures have not been audited by an external body. The value of investments may go down as well as up and the value will depend on fluctuations in financial markets outside MGIM's control, as a result an investor may not get back the amount invested. Past performance is not indicative of future performance and reference to a security is not a recommendation to buy or sell that security.
