Ten year historical cumulative performance

Sources: Morningstar, Momentum Global Investment Management (MGIM). Fund performance is calculated on a total return basis, net of all fees and in GBP terms. The value of the underlying funds and the income generated from them can go down as well as up, and is not guaranteed. Investors may not get back the original amount invested. The value of investments involving exposure to foreign currencies can be affected by currency exchange rate fluctuations. Past performance is not a guide to future performance.

Monthly commentary

- Global markets were broadly flat in November, masking sharp intra-month volatility. Global equities fell 0.5%, while global government bonds fell 0.7%. The S&P 500 fell 3.9% from its late-October peak before recovering by month-end, with the VIX spiking and Treasury yields swinging as risk sentiment shifted.
- Two themes dominated market moves: Fed policy expectations and AI-related concerns. Rate-cut bets were pared back early in the month amid a US government shutdown and cautious central bank messaging, before reviving on softer consumer and labour data, alongside speculation that Trump's prospective Fed Chair, Kevin Hassett, could favour deeper cuts. Meanwhile, questions over the sustainability of the AI boom led to sharp pullbacks across high-valuation tech stocks.
- Sentiment in more speculative areas weakened further, with sharp declines across major cryptocurrencies, while gold rose 5.1% as a safe haven, extending its YTD rally to 50%.
- Regional equity performance was mixed: China lagged on tech weakness and ongoing property sector stress, while Japan's modest equity gains were offset for UK-based investors by yen depreciation. In the UK, markets broadly absorbed the Autumn Budget without major shifts in gilt yields or sterling.
- The Fund's returns were supported by strong gains in gold, which provided meaningful diversification during the month's volatility. While emerging markets declined over the month at the index level, the Fund's active managers outperformed.
- Within specialist assets, Cordiant Digital Infrastructure performed well following strong H1 results, with NAV total return of 10%, higher earnings and an increase in its dividend. Molten Ventures also performed well after reporting a 7.9% uplift in NAV per share, higher portfolio valuations and further realisation activity, including part of its Revolut position. Primary Health Properties also contributed positively, supported by progress following the Assura acquisition, with the company now exploring the sale of a £700m hospital portfolio acquired through that deal as part of its broader strategy to recycle capital and strengthen its balance sheet.
- Despite near-term volatility, we remain constructive on the medium-term outlook and see opportunities to add risk selectively during pullbacks.
