Peer group: Dynamic Planner Risk Profile 5. Performance is calculated on a total return basis in GBP terms. The value of the underlying funds and the income generated from them can go down as well as up, and is not guaranteed. Investors may not get back the original amount invested. The value of investments involving exposure to foreign currencies can be affected by currency exchange rate fluctuations. Past performance is not a guide to future performance.

Monthly commentary

- Global markets were broadly flat in July, with the MSCI AC World index ending the month unchanged, although this masked considerable volatility beneath the surface. Korean equities shed almost a quarter of their value at one stage during the month, while renewed tensions between the US and Iran drove oil prices higher and reignited concerns that inflationary pressures could prove more persistent than previously expected.
- Despite US inflation tempering below levels seen in May, government bond yields moved higher across developed markets, reaching their highest levels since 2008 in the US, as investors reassessed the outlook following the ever-resurgent war narrative. Higher real yields weighed on some of the year's strongest performing areas, particularly technology, AI and momentum strategies.
- Market volatility was particularly pronounced in Asia, with South Korea experiencing exceptionally sharp and rapid swings. Heavy leveraged retail positioning, particularly in large technology stocks, amplified both the market's sell-off and subsequent rebound, highlighting the heightened sensitivity of the Korean equity market to shifts in investor sentiment.
- Fixed income markets also faced headwinds as higher yields resulted in modestly negative returns across most bond sectors. While corporate bonds continued to provide attractive levels of income, this was not enough to fully offset the decline in bond prices caused by higher interest rate expectations.
- A notable feature of 2026 has been the broadening of market leadership. Equity returns have become less concentrated across sectors and regions, creating a healthier environment for diversified portfolios and supporting areas such as quality companies, which have recovered following a difficult start to the year.
- While volatility is likely to remain elevated, periods of market uncertainty often create attractive opportunities for long term investors. The broadening of returns across asset classes and regions has strengthened the case for diversification. With a balanced asset mix and a strong lineup of active managers, we believe portfolios remain well positioned for what the remainder of the year may bring.

Important information

Fact sheet asset allocation percentages are in some cases based on the normalised (or benchmark) asset allocations of investee funds, as opposed to the actual exposures of those funds at the date of the fact sheet. This reflects the expected average allocation over time which will result from decisions to hold particular funds.

If you are considering investing in the Momentum Managed Portfolios clients should consult a suitably qualified and approved Financial Adviser. The performance shown represents performance of the Managed Portfolios that are periodically restructured and rebalanced based on the impact of material, economic and market factors that influence MGIM's decision-making on asset allocation. The Managed Portfolios are applied to client accounts by the platform provider but it may take some time for the client accounts to mirror the performance of the Managed Portfolios. It is for this reason that client accounts may not have achieved exactly the same returns as the Managed Portfolios. The performance of the Managed Portfolios is based on the actual performance of the underlying funds included in the portfolios. These performance figures have not been audited by an external body. The value of investments may go down as well as up and the value will depend on fluctuations in financial markets outside MGIM's control, as a result an investor may not get back the amount invested.
